Imogen has spent the last twenty-one years yearning for Blaise's love because he is the only person that makes her feel safe, but he's never around. Blaise has spent every waking moment the last two decades working towards a Council position because it's the only way he can give his soul companion the life she deserves, but that life is threatened by the Vampire Nation and the machine they plan to activate. Imogen holds the key to the location of the machine.

Blaise holds the key to Imogen's repressed memory. Together they must find each other and stop the doomsday device.
