Deborah didn't anticipate that there would be a connection between the reclamation of her body and the actions that would put her husband, David, in check. When you pass through the portal of Deborah's emotions, follow the journey that takes you with her along the road of her physical transformation and her sexual re-awakening; leading to an unanticipated outcome with David. Day by day, the journey takes her down avenues that she could never have imagined, making sex the weapon that wages a war within her marriage that she never intended to declare. In a whirlwind of events, she realized that her desire for another man wasn't dead, merely dormant. Once her desire was aroused, event began to happen that compelled her to surrender all control. In the end, she was Vindicated.
