“I only remember three things about the night I met Lachlann. First, I somehow wound up in a disgusting motel with no memory of how I got there. Second, the moment our eyes first met, I realized I was kneeling on the floor preparing to suck the cock of a man I’d never seen before in my life. And third, Lachlann made the stranger disappear in a puff of gray smoke before kneeling in front of me and whispering that I was safe.” Adam’s world changed forever the night he met Lachlann, and that brief and confusing encounter was only the beginning for both of them.
