For Claire Matthews disguise now comes as easily as piano performances once did. When a letter shatters the illusion of safety, will she turn to her cop and firefighter roommates for protection, or will she disappear into the winter night as she's done before? When his best friend threatens to make a move on Claire, Sean Dalton figures he'd better get over the notion that she's off limits before he has to stand in line. After a night of blazing passion, he's surprised to discover he doesn't mind sharing the woman of his dreams—or himself—with his best friend, Max. Max Devon warily gives into his desires for his two roommates. This time he vows, he'll know when to leave the ménage, especially as Sean is on the cusp of getting everything the hero deserves. He'll stick around long enough to see his two roommates get together.
