In the primal world of the Neanderthal, everything is alive.

The spirits are mischievous and malevolent, but none of them care if The People survive. It's where magic and your friends are all that stands between you and the next world. Eh Quest had been able to see the Shadow People since he was small, although he kept it secret. If others knew this, they would make him become a Speaker, dealing with those in the shadow world. Not for him! Just the thought of it made his skin go cold in fear. He'd rather face a stampeding mammoth! He was a hunter, that's all he wanted to be. But things are conspiring against him. The world turns to chaos and all the rules change, the clan become angry and the Speaker goes blind. Enemies surround him, Spirits confound him, but it is the secret he carries in his heart that will tear him apart. In the end, what must he do to save himself, his clan and the young life he holds in his hands?
