

Uncle Scrooge #358

|                          |  |
|--------------------------|--|
| Author:           | Carl Barks                               |
| Genre:            | Uncategorized                            |
| ISBN13:           | 9781888472417                            |
| Goodreads Rating: | 3.67                                     |
| Published:        | October 17th 2006 by Gemstone Publishing |
| Series            | Uncle Scrooge                            |
| Pages:            | 64                                       |
| ISBN10:           | 1888472413                               |

Uncle Scrooge #358.pdf

Uncle Scrooge #358.epub

It's our big Halloween issue for 2006 When Scrooge hides his fabled fortune in the Duckburg Mad Duke's castle, the Beagle Boys retaliate by turning Scrooge into a ghost in Carl Barks' classic tale "House of Haunts " Then Scrooge learns to "Let Sleeping Bones Lie" when he's taught a spooky on by the Junior Woodchucks and their Official Hound. In "Dance of the Cuckoos," McDuck clock delivery boy Fethry Duck comes up against a crabby old witch and her ogre. Finally, it's Scrooge and the nephews against "The Terror from Outer Space: " alien inventor Tachyon Farflung, making his first American appearance in this issue