There's Always Plan B by Susan Mallery Carly Spencer, former perfect wife, was changing her agenda... Because Plan A - be a stay-at-home mother and wife to a successful executive - had come crashing down. And left her with no money, a surly fifteen-year-old daughter and a burning need to start again. Which brings us to Plan B - home to Chatsworth-by-the-Sea, her stately (or so she remembered) birthplace. Only, Carly and the old home had one thing in common - a need for a makeover and some TLC. So what's a woman to do? Get to work, for starters. And as she restored her house, she was beginning to find herself...a home... Sandwiched by Jennifer Archer WHAT'S A FORTYISH WOMAN TO DO IF... Her free-spirited elderly mom's moving in, her previously do-gooder teenage daughter's sneaking out, her prize-winning stud bulldog can't get it on and her soon-to-be ex-husband can't get his mind off girls half his age? A. Have nervous breakdown B. Run away C. Eat massive quantities of ice cream D. See a counselor CiCi Dupree chooses C. She doesn't have time for a breakdown, can't afford to run away and she is a counselor. Until she fears her daughter - and even her widowed mother - are repeating her mistakes. CiCi realizes she has to do something, because after all, her family ties might be a bit frayed, but they still could bind nonethe...
