“My name is Gail, and here’s a tale that I would like to share...” Gail may happily share her tale...but never her toys, books, or other possessions. And that’s the problem in this entertaining story, narrated in rhyme by the resistant little girl herself. Gail’s favorite words are “Mine! Mine! Mine!” and she uses them all the time. Even when she tries to follow her Mom’s good examples of generosity, Gail doesn’t get it quite right. “An ugly hat, a broken bat, a smelly, chewed-up shoe...” are all she’ll hand over during her Cousin Claire’s visit. Will Gail EVER become a “sharing superstar”? With its adorable art and humorous perspective, this picture book makes its point in the most delightful way.
