EPOCH tells the story of Professor Alfred Watts Perry, the first African American to win a Nobel Prize in physics for his theory of emergence. Professor Perry wins a second Nobel for his work on broken symmetry and quantum gravity. But after a young child prodigy unwittingly solves some equations he has been working on for a decade, his colleagues are murdered and he barely escapes, with the help of the child prodigy, into inter-dimensional space; a region of space predicted by emergence theory. A secret government project, EPOCH(Emergent Properties of Cosmic Holography), based on Professor Perry's work has created technology to control spacetime and the leader of the project is intent upon tracking down Professor Perry and the child prodigy before they can expose EPOCH and the threat it holds for the destruction of the entire universe. Professor Perry faced with a gut wrenching and desperate choice must decide whether to sacrifice the needs of the few in order to save the many. In this case, the few are the six billion inhabitants of the earth.
