Do any of these excuses sound familiar? I'm just too busy I have too much on my plate There's never enough time I have to do it all I don't know how to manage it all If you answered yes, then prepare to put an end to the overwhelm once and for all. In Time Management Made Easy for Busy Moms, Carin Kilby Clark shares five simple tips that moms can implement right away to improve how they control their time and get things done. Time Management Made Easy for Busy Moms offers insight into the one major block that prevents us from maximizing our time, gives readers practical information that is easily applied to everyday life, and helps you along the path to your "aha" moments about how and why you've been ineffective in managing your time; and how to finally put time in its rightful place {on your side, of course!}. As the mother of three very active children who also works full-time, runs a business in her "spare" time, publishes a lifestyle & parenting site, manages a growing motherhood community, and regularly contributes parenting advice to many popular sites in the parenting/family life niche, Carin's advice is solid; based on methods that she has successfully implemented in controlling her time and getting things done.
