Was Pauline Ellington's death an accident... or was it murder? Sandy Evans moves to Washington, DC, to take over the day-to-day management of a bed-and-breakfast inn that her husband recently inherited. While sorting through the papers of the former owner, Pauline Ellington, Sandy comes across a letter that Pauline wrote but never mailed. The contents of the letter convince Sandy that Pauline's death was no accident—she was murdered. Sandy enlists the help of her step-daughter, Janie, and the housekeeper, Noah, to help her investigate Pauline's death. Between them they contact and question the seven people who were staying at the inn at the time of the supposed accident. They also manage to talk to neighbors and friends. Sandy reports their progress in nightly telephone conversations with her husband, Joey, and with her twin sister, Allison. But will she uncover the truth?
