At every intersection of life, we have a choice to make and for Evelyn Freeman, the last major intersection came on the day when her Rumaspringa began...two years later she is living the life she thought she'd always wanted, only to realize that perhaps she has made the biggest mistake of her life. When Evelyn left on Rumaspringa she had no intention of returning to her Amish community. Now two years later she is engaged and living a glamorous Englisch life, yet she somehow can't manage to shake the doubts that she carries around with her. So when she's giving the sign she's been looking for, she starts upon a journey of redemption by returning home to make things right, and in the process finds that maybe everything and everyone she always needed was right there all along. AUTHOR'S NOTE: This is a 12,000 word sweet stand-alone story with an HEA! No cliff-hangers guaranteed.
