Book 2 of the Teacher of Time series. Peter and Laurena have adopted Friedrich, who they met on their time travels to a German concentration camp in 1943.

Friedrich takes the same portal to the past, located at the Musical Instrument Museum in Phoenix, Arizona. He ends up in 1974 Berlin, where he meets Mari, another violin student, whose family was trapped behind the wall when it was first erected. This is also the story of Mari's parents, Max and Anja, and their life behind the Wall. Grinding poverty and very real fears of anything foreign or capitalistic are the hallmarks of Mari's life, as Friedrich attempts to help her reach her full potential as a performer. Will he endanger their lives by bringing modern ideas, technologies and gifts to the little family?
