In an enchanted forest far away from civilization, Theo and Mary, along with their son RAY and daughter HALEY, live quietly and happily in great contentment.

In this strange and mysterious place, they discover that their children were born with great natural powers. Ray possesses special gifts, including the ability to speak with animals and the elements while Haley can talk to plants and animals. She loves to create the most extraordinary and beautiful garden full of vegetables and flowers. When Theo learns the townspeople, who drive them away many years ago, are blaming them for the devastation of his former town, he must embark on a journey to prove their innocence. However, Theo and the townspeople have no idea that the problem is bigger than they think. There is a hidden kingdom below the town with a community of powerful goblins, a mix community of goblins and trolls. Their kinds are thousands of years in existence. They enjoy living underneath the surface because these grizzly creatures live in the garbage. They enjoy the quality of trash in the landfill of Vedasto City and they have no plans of moving out. When Theo and Haley mysteriously disappear, Ray needs to use his keen wits and magical abilities to find them into the most polluted and smelly place in the world!
